Physica[illegible]f historical significance:

The Methodist Church is a one story, brick building which stands at the southeast corner of North Main and Delta streets in Union, Oregon. This building, in the shape of a Greek Cross, has a gable roof. A square bell tower with double entry doors is located on the west (front) elevation. The belfry is open and is surmounted by a steep hip roof with four gables for decoration (see photo). The gable ends of the building are covered with imbricated shingling as is the upper section of the bell tower. Leaded glass, stained windows are located in lancet bays in the west and north elevations. The window bays have stone lugsills.

This is the second building erected in Union, Oregon, by the Methodists. The first building, constructed in 1873, was occupied by the fellowship until it constructed this building in 1905. The earlier building was sold in 1904 to the Catholics and is presently the Sacred Heart Catholic Church (see file sheet).
